Scholars' Events

Since the summer is the busy exam term, there is, as usual, only one big Roysse event which is for all scholars: this is the postponed talk by Will Hutton from earlier in the year.

This will take place in the Amey Theatre on Tuesday 8 May. Mr Hutton is a journalist and economist who has written for the Guardian and Observer for over fifteen years. He has written a number of best-selling books on economics and has chaired the Independent Commission on Fees, an investigation into the long-term impact of UK student fees on access to higher education. He is also Principal of Hertford College, Oxford. This talk will run from 5.30 (and not 5.00pm as mistakenly listed in the calendar) to 6.30pm.

The talk is compulsory for all scholars except those in the fifth year (who will already be on study leave), though they are most welcome to come along as well for what should be a fascinating topic. Parents are also extremely welcome, and since we are in the Amey Theatre there will be plenty of room for anyone who is interested and wishes to come along.

We continue to be very grateful for any suggestions for good speakers: if anyone has further names/contacts for next year please do get in touch with one of us.

Yours sincerely
